

"...that they might be called trees of righteousness"

I saw this yesterday and thought it would be nice to forward to everyone. I hope everyone has a great weekend and reach out to someone you haven't been in contact with for a while and share your love.

Hey fam, I just wanted to share something that has been on my heart the past week or so... I hope it encourages & inspires you!

Right now in this time of uncertainty there are a lot of people hurting, a lot of people facing anxiety and a lot of people that feel alone.

Let's not just say that we love people. Let's not just quote Scripture. Let's not just say we love the world. Let's demonstrate it. God gave us the example, He demonstrated his love for us. Let's demonstrate our love to the hurting people around us.

I know you can't go around just hugging everybody and holding hands because of social distancing; but guys, you can send out texts to your family, friends or neighbors. You can pray for them and with them. You can send them food or gifts. You can connect through a FaceTime or Zoom call. There's something you can do right now to actively demonstrate your love for the people around you.

There's a couple not far from where Demi & I live still recovering from COVID-19 that we've been friends with for a long time. We can't go over there and give them hugs, we can't really even bring them meals because of not trying to get too close; but we can send texts, we can encourage them, we can talk on the phone, we can FaceTime with them, we can still let them know that they are loved, that they're not alone... Even though sometimes they're feeling alone.

Who is that person, who is that family, or the people in your life that you can demonstrate your love to right now? That's my encouragement and that's my motivation to you and to us today. Let's demonstrate our love to people that need it. Every day we share the Gospel but every now and then we use words. Let's share the Gospel with how we demonstrate our love for people.

God bless!
